

The Asirt Challenge

Asirt's on-line recruitment process is both easy-to-use and highly efficient. Perhaps you would care to compare your existing processes in several key areas that our recent research identified.

Question:

Do you wish to generate considerable cost savings over existing agency driven recruiting methods?
Do you need a recruitment process that is easy to use and applies to every level of management and staff?

Does your organization need to have a uniform and in-depth examination of each and every candidate against a common set of employment criteria?
Would your organization like to eliminate bias and establish total equality throughout the whole recruitment process?

Would you like to identify and secure the best candidates quicker, even before your competitors?
Do you need to have total consistency and uniformity in the recruitment processes across all your offices in the UK?

Has your current recruitment administrative system ever lost candidate information?
Is your current recruitment process perceived as dated? Does it therefore undermine the brand values of your organization?

Would it help the HR resource in your organization to have instant, on-line recall of each and every applicant's data?

Are you ever uneasy about how recruitment agencies describe your organization? Their discretion? Or how they can influence your corporate image?

If you've said yes to some of these points, you should be talking to us NOW!